

running south from Lasunayoc the unnamed first peak to the south was climbed on August 4 by Retchford, Wyborn; the two next peaks south, immediately northeast of Tayancayoc*, both on August 1 by McNaughton, Bennett, Retchford, Wyborn; Tayancayoc* on July 26 by Higgs, Gamlen. Lasunayoc (19,559 feet; first ascent by Americans, 1956) was the highest peak climbed by the expedition. The third ascent was completed by a new route on the northeast ridge and east face. We made two high camps, the first about 400 feet below Lasunayoc col and the second on the northeast ridge about 1200 feet below the summit. The top was reached on July 27 by Retchford and Wyborn, on July 28 by Feller, Bennett, Retchford and Wyborn and on August 10 by Sutton, McNaughton and F. Kerr. (Miss Faye Kerr joined us from the British-Australian Expedition.)

ROSS WYBORN, Australian Andean Expedition

Cara Cruz, Cordillera Vilcabamba. Jona and Elizabeth Osauskas climbed Cara Cruz or Sarkantay Chico (17,123 feet) in June. (On the IGM Hoja Anta the names of Salcantay and Sarkantay have been reversed. P 6271 should be Salcantay.)

JOHN RICKER

Cotrillane and Caltane, Cordillera Carabaya. Olaf Hartmann and Pete Barry climbed Cotrillane (c. 17,400 feet) by its northwest slopes in August and found a cairn on the summit. Hartmann made a solo ascent of Caltane (c. 17,060 feet) northwest of the Coasa road in July.

JOHN RICKER

P 5680 and Campa I, Cordillera Vilcanota. The Deutscher Alpenverein excursion took sixteen members into the range for ten days. Base Camp was below the Campa Pass. Unbelievably we had four days of bad weather. In snow and fog ten of us, Norbert Gartmaier, Volker Schwarz, Brigitte Jaenisch, Winfried Schönhuber, Hellmuth Baur, Fritz Vogel, Adolf Kiesel, Werner Hettwer, Philipp Braun and I, ascended Campa I (17,871 feet) on July 4. On the 6th Brigitte Jaenisch, Schwarz and I made the first ascent of P 5680 (18,635 feet) on the long east ridge of Mariposa.

MANFRED STURM, Deutscher Alpenverein

Pico Huamalla, Cordillera Yauyos. With the American Bill Douglas, I visited the Cordillera Yauyos, taking the Huancayo-Cañete road. At Santo